

Remembering A Bull Named Oscar.

In Oscar's first five years as a bucking bull, more than 100 cowboys tried to ride him and every one of them failed to last eight seconds. Oscar became such a challenge that owners RSC (Rodeo Stock Contractors) offered a bronze "Oscar" to the first man to ride him. Oscar, unlike many great bucking bulls, was small, weighing about 1,300 pounds. His bucking style was characterized by a violent spin to the left. Only a handful of cowboys made an eight-second ride on Oscar, among them John Davis, Randy Magers, Jerome Robinson, Allan Jordan, Guy Barth and Don Gay. ABOVE Randy riding the Hall of Fame bucking bull Oscar. Oscar was only ridden eight times and two of those rides belonged to Randy. One of the rides was during the 1975 National Finals Rodeo when Randy finished as Reserve World Champion.
